Turnes Reunion Held Sunday

Golden Echoes To Render Program at Galilee

The Golden Echoes of Evington, Va. will render a musical program at the Galilee Baptist Church this first Sunday evening at 7:30. The general public is cordially invited to attend. The program is given by the church for the benefit of the annual Hayes Allen Day program of Virginia College.

A very large crowd attended the pagaent, "The Light of Peace" at the Mount Airy Baptist Church last Sunday evening at 7:30. Mrs. H. W.Pryor served as mistress of ceremony. The devotionals were conducted by the pastor of the church with the assistance of Rev. R. Q. Lawing and special music by Mrs. Ora Scruggs McCoy and son. A cordial welcome was given by Mrs. Eugene Pennix and the response was given by deacon Irving of the Mineral Spring Baptist Church. Mrs. Evelyn Berry rendered a beautiful solo which set the stage for the pagaent. Mrs. H. P. Johnson served as narrator. The pagaent pictured the prophets and kings who predicted the coming of peace into the world thru our Lord and Saviour. Each character carried and lighted a candle. The entire program was enjoyed by all. The scenery and dress were beautiful. At the end of the program the following financial report was made: Deacon Christian, representing the deacon board, $25.00; The gospel chorus, $25.00; Deacon Milton Berry, representing the Men's Club, $80.00; The Sunday School by Mrs. Joe Megginson, $157.26; The Choir by Mrs. Pinkie Humbles, $183.00; The Usher board by Mrs. Virginia Megginson, $220.60; the public offering was $124.00 which made the general offering for the evening, $1,271.55. The pastor of the church gave the final remarks and thanks to all workers and friends who helped to make the program a success. A special tribute and thanks was given to Mrs. Constance Irving Rucker who was the sponsor and director of the pagaent. A period of songs and testimonies climaxed the meeting. The benediction was given by Rev. Lawing.

The special service held at the Galilee Baptist Church Sunday morning for the benefit of the cemetery fund was a success. The senior choir rendered beautiful music. The offering was very good.

The annual revival ot the Promise Land Baptist Church came to a successful close Friday evening. The Rev. J. D. Moore was the speaker throughout the week. Three additions were made to the church.

The general public is cordially invited to attend the regular preaching service at the Zion Baptist Church this Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

The Morning Star Baptist Church will present the Appomattox Trumpteers in a musical program on the second Sunday evening in this month at 7:30. The general public is asked to support this special program. It is presented for the benefit of the NAACP queen contest.

Ed Barron, 52; cancer, five operations and a lot of trophies.

Running Away From Surgery

[NOTE: The article printed below appeared recently in an edition of the WASHINGTON POST in Washington, D. C. written by Joel Goldberg. Edwin S. Barron of Arlington is the son-in-law of Mrs. G. Lewis Dees of Appomattox, married to the former La Ferne Doss.

We feel the story is inspiring and that perhaps it can offer hope to persons with a disease similiar to Barron's cancer.]

By Joel Goldberg

During the past six years, Ed Barron has suffered through ulcerative colitis and cancer of the colon and undergone five major operations. He left his gall bladder on the operating table and had a colostomy which left his intestinal tract emptying into a plastic bag.

But in February, Barron, 52, ran a marathon at Beltsville, finishing the grueling 26-mile race in 3 hours, 36 minutes, just six minutes under than the qualifying standard for over-40 competitors in the Boston Marathon.

"After 22 miles it was like I hit a wall, " recalled Barron. "I just gutted through the last four miles. It was like going through a meat grinder."

A native of Norfolk, Barron attended William and Mary as an undergraduate, and pursued his graduate studies in economics at George Washington University and American University. He presently works for the CIA. He is married and has three children.

Barron began running about seven years ago, one year prior to his first operation. He'd been living with the pain of colitis at that time, for more than 10 years. He started off jogging a couple of miles daily and increased the distance once the colostomy had remedied the debilitating effects of the disease.

Barron sees nothing extraordinary in a man with his medical history performing a feat he himself calls "the most physical in all sports."

"I don't think I should be an automatic cripple just because of what happened to me," said Barron. "People give up too soon and say, "That's it, I'm through". But they don't realize the human body's ability to adjust to such things. Personally, I'm running faster than before the operations."

Barron has no illusions about what helped him survive his medical ordeal.

"I owe my life to running," he said. "In cases like mine for people over 40, the mortality rate is extremely high. The surgeons said there was no doubt my overall conditioning pulled me through."

But Barron's most significant achievement is his establishment in November 1973, of the Potomac Valley Track Club for seniors (30 and older) with cofounder Ray Gordon. The club has grown to its present membership of 148 runners whose ages range as high as 70.

"We've been a nation of spectators for too long," said the Arlington resident: "It's amazing that people who've been on their rears so long are finally getting on their feet."

Dr. Glynn Wood, former national record-holder in the senior's mile, is a member of the club and says of Barron, "He's the most energetic guy I've ever seen, a real evangelist for the sport."

Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) who occasionally runs in the club's development meets at Yorktown High School, says "Barron's a terrific man. And he still nips me at 100 yards."

Barron is often called on to visit people facing operations similiar to his, to give them courage and serve as a personal example of what post-operative patients can accomplish.

"You can do just about anything you want to afterwards," he says. "If I can save one person it will be worth it."

SENIOR CITIZENS AT STATE FAIR

The State Fair of Virginia will be held from Sept. 23 - Oct. 3. Friday, Sept. 24, is Senior Citizens Day, and the State Fair Office is doing everything possible to make it an enjoyable one. The Virginia Office on Aging has met with State Fair personnel responsible for Senior Citizens Day, and appropriate arrangements to accomodate the Seniors have been made.

All Seniors will be admitted to the Fair for half price ($1.00) on Sept. 24, and a special, one-hour program will be provided for those wishing to attend. The program is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. in the Grandstand, and will include a welcome by Edwin L. Wood, Director of the Virginia Office on Aging; entertainment by the Bi-Centennial Touring Medicine Show; and a brief presentation on what to do and see at the Fair during the remainder of the day. Afterwards, the Seniors will be left on their own to enjoy all that the Fair has to offer.

Buses are asked to enter the Fairgrounds at the Service Gate, which is located off the Richmond - Henrico Turnpike. There will be Fair personnel to direct the buses to free parking on the Raceway, which is directly behind the Grandstand. Individual cars must find and pay for their own parking, but the Fair recommends that cars enter at Gate 6, and that Pedestrian Gate B be used for easy access to the Gandstand. No transportation will be provided on the grounds, so please make the appropriate arrangements for those unable to walk. Wheelchairs can be rented from the Fair. First aid facilities are also available.

While visiting the Fair, don't forget to stop by the Virginia Office on Aging Booth in the Commonwealth Building and the Senior Citizen Hand Work Display in the Arts and Crafts Building.
